Essay 1 — Globalisation

There are both advantages and disadvantages to globalisation. First, in terms of the benefits, it accelerates the speed of transactions, which means that people can communicate more easily and complete tasks faster. When we communicate with people who share a global mindset, we can understand one another more deeply. On the other hand, there are some drawbacks. With globalisation, the cultures of local and rural areas may be at risk of disappearing. For example, I have heard about this problem from people who live in Africa on YouTube, and some statistics show that the number of languages is decreasing over time. This is one of the problems attributed to globalisation. In summary, globalisation has both merits and demerits. If it continues, it may give us the chance to produce innovative ideas through discussion and a better understanding of diversity, and opportunities for interaction will keep increasing. To make the most of these opportunities, people around the world should communicate in a common language, such as English, which contributes to global development.

Essay 2 — Most successful multicultural country

It would be the United States of America, because this country has been successful in promoting multiculturalism in both academia and industry. It has developed by embracing immigration. The recent situation in the U.S. is uncertain, and I do not know what President Trump thinks. However, one clear example of a person who has benefited from a multicultural environment is Elon Musk, who was born in a different country, South Africa.

Essay 3 — Japanese festival

One of the most popular festivals in Japan is the fireworks festival. Fireworks displays are held in many areas, even in the countryside. There are usually food stalls at the venue, so we can enjoy the fireworks while eating delicious food.

Essay 4 — Facebook users (Task 1)

The two pie charts compare the age distribution of Facebook users in 2005 and 2015. In 2005, users aged 13–24 made up the largest group at 51%, whereas in 2015 this figure fell to 31%, and users aged 25–40 became the largest group at 47%. Interestingly, in both years people aged 66–80 used Facebook the least. In more detail, in 2005 the age groups accounted for 51% (13–24), 32% (25–40), 16% (41–65) and 1% (66–80). In 2015, the figures were 31%, 47%, 19% and 3% respectively.

Essay 5 — Application letter

Dear Sir or Madam, My name is Kaito, and I am writing from Japan. I became curious about your school after seeing its advertisement. I graduated from graduate school in Japan, where I studied IT, so I am able to teach programming and IT. In addition, I have recently been developing a mobile application, which means I am well suited to teaching IT to children who are interested in the field. I look forward to hearing from you. Yours faithfully, Kaito
